CHENANGO RIVER TRAIL

CHENANGO FORKS - CHENANGO BRIDGE

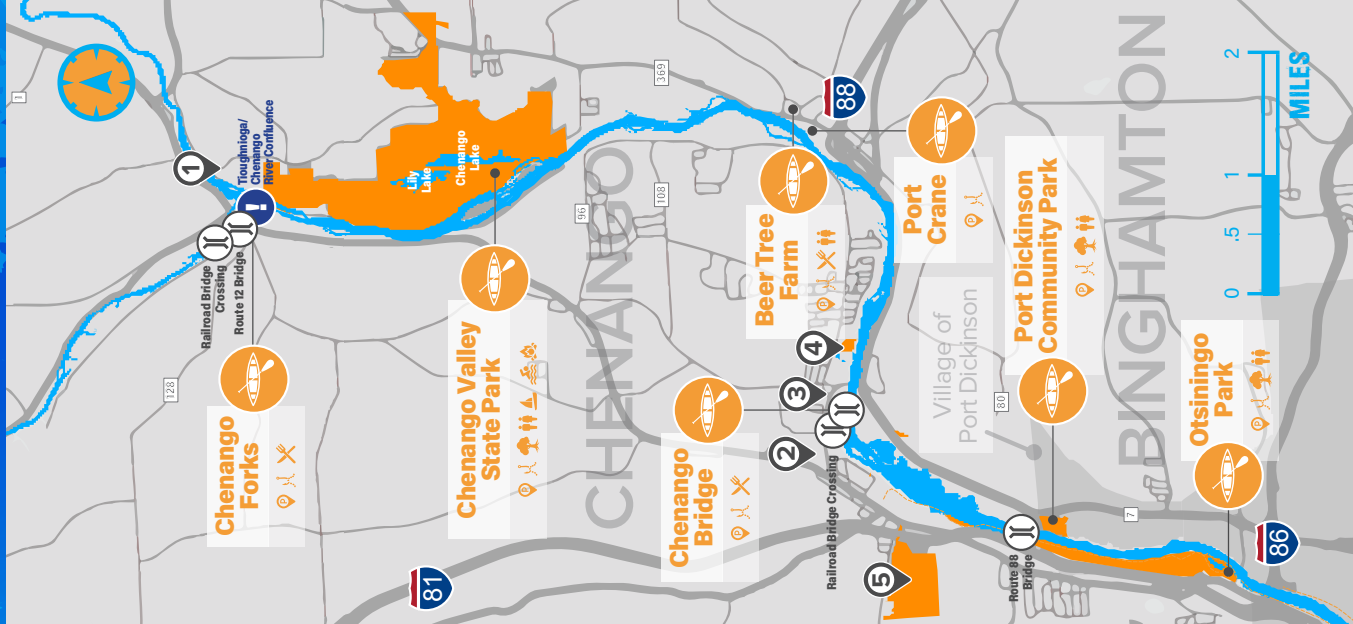

LEISURELY FLOAT

With relatively shallow and slow flows at normal river levels, this segment of the river is great for casual paddlers looking to get out on the water to enjoy the sunshine and splash around. This section of river is familiar to a lot of locals as it is easily seen when driving along Route 88 and runs along the eastern edge of one of the County's most popular recreational attractions, Chenango Valley State Park. CV State Park also provides a great campground if you want to make a weekend of your trip. You don't have to be a wildlife expert to take in views of the frequently sighted bald eagles in this stretch. Unique to this segment is the opportunity to pull off for lunch at Beer Tree Farm with river access just over 5 miles from the start giving paddlers a chance to take a break and stretch your legs. Be especially alert just after you launch from your starting point. After a short distance you will meet the confluence of the Tioughnioga and Chenango Rivers where changing water patterns might cause instability if you are not attentive.
